The Duct Tape Guys are Tim Nyberg and Jim Berg – two everyday guys who have dedicated their lives to duct tape. As the authors of seven books documenting well over five thousand real and wacky uses for duct tape, Jim and Tim are constantly on the lookout for wildly creative uses of “The Ultimate Power Tool.” Their newest book, “Stump the Duct Tape Guys” joins six others (“The Duct Tape Book;” “Duct Tape Book Two – Real Stories;” “The Ultimate Duct Tape Book;” “The Jumbo Duct Tape Book;” “Duct Shui” and “The Original Duct Tape Halloween Book”). With their best selling Duct Tape Page-A-Day® Calendars they have sold over three million copies, a testament to the universal appeal of duct tape.

The Duct Tape Guys are popular radio and television show guests as they motor-mouth their way through the praises of duct tape. Their bizarre prop comedy has gotten them airtime on most major television broadcast and cable networks. They were regulars on the first season of Discovery’s “Gimme Shelter,” and frequent guests on TBS’s “Man Made Movie” (where the crew dubbed them “the one-take wonders”).

It all started on Christmas Eve, 1993. The power was out in the small Northeastern Wisconsin town where Jim and Tim’s family was gathering for the holiday. Jim made the comment, “I bet if I knew where the power outage was, I could fix it with duct tape.” Tim, (Jim’s brother-in-law) who grew up on lesser tapes (masking and transparent tape), didn’t understand how duct tape could solve the problem. Jim’s wife replied, “Oh, Jim fixes everything with duct tape!” They proceeded to list some of the things duct tape has fixed in their household. “There’s a book in here!” Tim thought. He got out his laptop computer and the entire family sat around brainstorming uses for duct tape. So, on this cold, dark winter night, “The Duct Tape Guys” were born.

Outside of their duct tape world, Tim Nyberg is a graphic designer, and advertising/marketing consultant and Jim Berg is an educational consultant for families with special needs children ages birth to three. They both reside in Door County, Wisconsin. Together, they don their “Duct Tape Guy” apparel and become Duct Tape Evangelists making appearances around the world at home shows, conventions, comedy clubs, and on thousands of radio and television stations.

In addition to the Duct Tape Book series, Jim and Tim have also co-authored “Golf on the Tundra,” and “The WD-40 Book.” You can visit their massive online tribute to Duct Tape at www.DuctTapeGuys.com
